THE ENTHUSIAST

The Epicure

The Electric Energy Who Lights Up Every Salon Experience

CORE MOTIVATION IN THE SALON

> Type Sevens are driven by a desire for pleasure, experience, and possibility. They want to keep things exciting, avoid pain and limitation, and live fully in the moment. In the salon, Sevens are the ones with the most energy in the room — they make every client feel like the appointment is going to be amazing.

CLIENT COMMUNICATION STYLE

- Sevens are naturally charismatic, fast-talking, and enthusiastic communicators. Clients feel swept up in their energy.
- They can be so enthusiastic about possibilities that they over-promise or distract from the practical details.
- Natural strength: Clients leave appointments energized, excited, and looking forward to their next visit.
- Growth edge: Slowing down long enough to truly listen. Sometimes the client needs to finish their thought.

THE CONSULTATION

- Sevens are creative, generative consultors — they light up with ideas and can inspire clients to be bolder than they planned.
- They can struggle to stay focused on what the client actually asked for — getting distracted by an exciting idea mid-consultation.
- Tip: Build a habit of reflecting back exactly what the client asked for before introducing new ideas.

CREATIVITY & ARTISTRY

- Sevens are naturally innovative and trend-forward. They love trying new things, experimenting, and pushing into unexplored territory.
- They may get bored with repetitive services or long-term clients with predictable requests.
- Growth edge: Finishing projects with the same enthusiasm they started with. The last 10% matters as much as the first.
- Their energy is contagious — clients feel excited to be in their chair.

SELF-WORTH MASTERY: MOVING FROM FIXED TO GROWTH

- Fixed pattern → Growth prompt: 'I get excited about new things but struggle to finish what I started — and I'm a little ashamed of that.' → You are not broken. Your energy is generative. The upgrade is pairing your vision with completion. Name one thing you started that would genuinely change your business if you finished it. Block time this week to take it to done.

- Fixed pattern → Growth prompt: 'I need variety and stimulation — I get bored with routine clients or repetitive services.' → What is one classic service you perform regularly that you could make genuinely exciting by mastering it at a deeper level? Mastery creates its own variety — there is always another dimension to explore.

- Fixed pattern → Growth prompt: 'I keep starting new things before the last thing has compounded.' → Compounding requires staying. Pick your most promising current project — a specialty, a clientele, a social platform — and commit to it for 90 uninterrupted days. Write down what you expect to see at the end, then show up and see.
- Fixed pattern → Growth prompt: 'I avoid sitting with anything heavy or painful, including honest self-reflection.' → Schedule 15 minutes this week with no phone, no music, no distraction. Sit with the question: what is one thing in my business that I've been excited about but haven't followed through on — and what would it mean to actually complete it?
- Your growth affirmation: My energy, joy, and vision are genuine gifts. I am learning to direct them with intention. Depth is not the enemy of excitement — it is where the real adventure lives.

BUILDING YOUR BUSINESS BEHIND THE CHAIR

- Sevens build businesses on energy and excitement — and they are genuinely gifted at attraction. The challenge is retention and systems.
- Build a follow-through infrastructure: rebooking systems, retail follow-up sequences, maintenance reminders. These processes catch the clients that the Seven's enthusiasm brought in but their inconsistency might otherwise lose.
- Commit to one specialty and develop it deeply. Sevens who master something distinctive create a business model that doesn't require constant new-client acquisition because word-of-mouth from delighted clients generates momentum.
- Use your natural enthusiasm for content creation. Sevens make magnetic video content, engaging social media, and compelling in-person events. Channel your energy into visibility that works for you even when you're behind the chair.
- Build accountability structures. A business coach, a mastermind partner, a peer check-in — Sevens thrive when someone lovingly holds them to their commitments.
- Track your metrics — and make it a game. Sevens are competitive and love to win. Frame business KPIs as a personal challenge and your natural drive will engage.

SELLING SERVICES & RETAIL

- Sevens are often the most naturally enthusiastic retail sellers — they genuinely love products and it shows.
- They can over-recommend — mentioning five products when one is the priority — and overwhelm clients.
- Best approach: Focus enthusiasm. Pick the ONE product the client most needs. Lead with excitement, close with simplicity.
- Sevens' genuine love of beauty products is their greatest retail asset — authenticity sells.
- Sevens love new product launches and can drive excitement around seasonal collections and limited-edition items.
- Their enthusiasm is contagious — clients often buy what Sevens are excited about, just from the energy.

- Watch for: Promising results that require more consistency than the client — or the Seven — will actually follow through on.

FEEDBACK, BOUNDARIES & TOUGH CONVERSATIONS WITH CLIENTS

- Sevens can be resistant to feedback that feels limiting, critical, or heavy. They process it best when it comes wrapped in genuine positivity and framed as an expansion of possibilities: 'Imagine how much more impact you'd have if...'
- The harder work for a Seven is sitting with feedback long enough to integrate it — rather than rebounding immediately into optimism that bypasses the lesson.
- With unhappy clients: Sevens instinctively lighten the mood and pivot to solutions — which is usually effective. Watch for using humor to deflect rather than genuinely acknowledge what went wrong.
- Setting limits with clients: Sevens can struggle to say no — they want to say yes to everything. Practice: 'I love this idea and want to make sure we do it right. Let me tell you what I need in order to make this work.'
- Giving feedback: Sevens are naturally encouraging and can be genuinely uplifting in how they frame growth conversations. Their challenge is to include the difficult truth, not just the exciting possibility.
- Tough conversations: Sevens avoid pain — and difficult conversations are painful. Practice: schedule the conversation, enter it with a clear intention, and stay in it until it's resolved. Leaving unresolved conflict is not freedom — it is the anxiety of unfinished business.

TEAM DYNAMICS, FEEDBACK & UTILIZING YOUR GIFTS ON A SALON TEAM

- On a salon team, Sevens are the energy source. They lift the room, make the work feel fun, generate ideas, and are often the reason clients love coming to the salon as a whole.
- They are innovators — always bringing new ideas, new techniques, new ways of doing things. This is genuinely valuable when channeled well.
- Natural team contribution: Energy, creativity, morale, marketing ideas, new client attraction, and the contagious excitement that makes the salon feel like a great place to be.
- Growth edge: Consistency and follow-through on team commitments. The Seven who says yes and doesn't follow through creates work for others and erodes trust over time.
- Watch for: Sevens can unintentionally dominate team culture with their energy, drowning out quieter teammates. Build in the practice of making space for others before filling it.
- Power move: Lead a team brainstorm or creative planning session. Sevens are extraordinary at facilitation — their enthusiasm is contagious and their ideation is generative. Follow it up with someone holding the execution.
- Sevens thrive in salon cultures with variety, creativity, and fun. They disengage in environments that are overly rigid, routine-heavy, or emotionally heavy.

CAREER PATH ALIGNMENT

- Salon Owner / Creative Director — setting the vision, building the brand, bringing the energy
- Platform Artist / Brand Educator — travel, variety, new audiences — a Seven's dream
- Social Media Content Creator — turning natural enthusiasm and spontaneity into content
- Session Stylist — variety of clients, contexts, and creative briefs keeps them engaged and inspired

STRESS & GROWTH PATHS

UNDER STRESS

Under stress (moving toward Type 1), Sevens become critical, rigid, and perfectionistic — losing their natural joy and becoming controlling about how things 'should' be done.

IN GROWTH

In growth (moving toward Type 5), Sevens develop depth, focus, and the ability to master one thing. Their creativity deepens from scattered excitement into genuine expertise.

WINGS

Every type is influenced by one of its neighboring types — called a wing. While your core type remains primary, your wing adds flavor and nuance to how you show up in the salon.

7w6 — The Entertainer

The 6 wing adds warmth, loyalty, and a genuine investment in relationships. These stylists are both exciting AND trustworthy — clients love them AND come back.

- Client Style: Fun, warm, engaging. The appointment feels like a highlight of the client's week.
- Selling Style: Enthusiastic AND genuinely caring. Clients buy because it's exciting AND because they trust the recommendation.
- Challenge: Anxiety about letting people down. Fear of client disappointment can creep in alongside the enthusiasm.

7w8 — The Realist

The 8 wing adds boldness, directness, and confident action to the Seven. These stylists are exciting AND decisive — they take action with a commanding energy that clients find thrilling.

- Client Style: Bold, confident, fun. Clients feel they are in the hands of someone who knows exactly what they're doing.
- Selling Style: Direct and enthusiastic. 'You need this. Trust me.' — and clients do.
- Challenge: Can be too much for quieter clients. Needs to read the room and match energy rather than dominate it.

YOUR GENIUS: A COSMETOLOGIST SUMMARY

GENIUS INSIGHT

Type Sevens bring something the cosmetology profession runs on: joy. The ability to make every client feel like their appointment is the best part of their week is not a trivial gift — it is what builds the kind of salon culture and client loyalty that sustains careers across decades. The Seven's growth invitation is depth: to stop at one technique long enough to master it, to commit to one client long enough to transform them, to build one business long enough to watch it compound. When a Seven discovers that commitment doesn't diminish freedom — that mastery doesn't extinguish excitement — they become the most powerful version of themselves: the stylist who is both brilliant and complete, both inspiring and reliable, both exciting and deeply, durably excellent.
